Jets stun pro football world; beat heavily-favored Colts

MIAMI (AP)—Eighteen point underdogs?

That was the cry that resounded through the New York Jets' dressing room after the American Football League champions had trimmed the Baltimore Colts 16-7 Sunday and broke the National Football League's domination of the Super Bowl since its inception three years ago.

Not once did the American League representatives fail to let everybody in the steaming hot, jammed quarters know that they were the best. They were the champions just as they said they would be despite the great record of the Colts and the odds favoring the NFL champs.

"It is a victory for the entire American Football League," said quarterback Joe Namath, who goaded the Colts' all week and then made his words stick by completing 17 of 28 passes for 206 yards and calling what coach Weeb Ewbank described as an almost perfect game.

Namath at first refused to talk about the game. "I only talk to our New York writers," he said. "They were the only ones who thought we had a chance."

Namath had to be coaxed by Phil Iselein, to appear on television. Then the controversial quarterback said "never were so many people wrong."

"It was fabulous," said Ewbank, who now has the unique record of winning two NFL titles (with the Colts in 1958-59) and one in the AFL. "Joe called another of his great games. I couldn't pick out one of the players who played poorly. Defense was marvelous, the offensive nine great. The Colts also were great but we were greater. We didn't make mistakes."

"This is the start of a new era," said Ewbank, who dripped from being thrown into the shower. "We did put in a few new wrinkles, such as a couple of pass patterns, but they stuck when they found it going so well. Ball control did it. We didn't make any errors.

Future U. S. space shots 'chancy'

NEW YORK (AP)—The command pilot of the Apollo 8 moon-orbiting flight said Sunday he was concerned that because the flight was so perfect, Americans may expect all future flights to be equally smooth.

"I hope that people don't expect all of them to be this trouble-free," said Air Force Col. Frank Borman, spacecraft commander.

"As I've said many times, it's the best that America can produce, there's still an awful lot of parts that have to work properly," he said. "And every one of these flights will be a chancy thing."

Borman and his teammates, Navy Capt. James Lovell and Air Force Lt. Col. William Anders appeared on WCBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

Asked if the three had had any plans for what they would have done had their spacecraft not kicked out of lunar orbit, back toward earth Borman said, "We had no plans along those lines...no concern along those lines." Later, he agreed that spacemen had to be optimists.

Anders said that considering the "very friendly attitude towards our space program" demonstrated by the Russian ambassador and staff during the astronauts' visit to the United Nations, he thought it might signal "some kind of forthcoming gesture of theirs."

New appointee at odds with law

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect Richard M. Nixon's choice of J. Phil Campbell for under secretary of agriculture will place responsibility for enforcing the controversial 1967 federal meat inspection law in the hands of one of its leading opponents.

The law, still a year away from full implementation, has the effect of extending federal standards for purity and wholesomeness to all red meat sold in the United States.

It requires the 15,000 meat packing plants operating within

Nixon sees Super Bowl

NEW YORK (AP)—President-elect Richard M. Nixon spent a leisurely Sunday, part of it watching the Super Bowl football game on television, before moving into the final week of preparation for his Jan. 20 inauguration.

Nixon and his wife spent the day at their Fifth Avenue apartment. They move to the White House a week from Monday.

The President-elect did some work on his inaugural address. But Allen Woods, a press assistant, said there were no appointments on his schedule.

Woods said Nixon would watch the professional football championship game between the New York Jets and the Baltimore Colts.

state borders to meet the same sanitation standards as packers who do business across state lines.

If states fail to enforce the law by 1970 the Agriculture Department is required to step in and take over inspection duties.

Campbell, who will resign as Georgia's commissioner of agriculture to take the No. 2 job in the federal department, was a leading critic of the meat inspection bill in hearings before the Senate Agriculture Committee. But his appointment has stirred little, if any, reaction in the upper chamber.

Still, the question of Campbell's views on the meat bill are virtually certain to be raised when his appointment comes before the Senate for confirmation.

Iowa Democrat Neal Smith, a sponsor of the bill in the House, has denounced the appointment, calling Campbell "one of two or three most prominent in opposing the new act."

"Linked with Nixon's statement that there will be no independent consumer advocate in government, the appointment of Campbell gives the green light to the dirty meat people," he said.

Smith's reference to an independent consumer advocate referred to Nixon's decision to do away with the job of special assistant to the president for consumer affairs, now held by Betty Furness, and assign the duties to the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Command accepts cutback

SAIGON (AP)—The U. S. Command has reluctantly accepted the fact that some American troops will begin withdrawing from South Vietnam within a relatively brief period, informed sources said Sunday.

"It is no longer a question of pulling out troops," one official said. "The questions now are when, and how many?"

The informants, who preferred not to be identified, said they expected President Johnson to make an announcement on the subject before he leaves office Jan. 20.

The proposal for withdrawals is tied to the battle situation in South Vietnam, the U. S. political scene and the deadlocked Paris peace negotiations.

With the buildup of the Saigon government's armed forces toward the million mark, the theory is that the United States can whittle down its commitment of about 540,000 men if the current military limit continues.

The U. S. Command announced Sunday that 63 enemy troops were wiped out in a series of relatively small actions. Of these, 43 were killed in two clashes 50 and 64 miles north of Saigon. U. S. losses were nine killed and 17 wounded.

Enemy gunners kept up harassing attacks on towns and military posts in scattered parts of the country and blew up a bridge on Route 4, the main highway between Saigon and the rice-rich Mekong Delta.

London mobs clash over racial policies

Rhodesia, S. Africa targets

LONDON (AP)—Angry crowds charged at diplomatic missions of two white African governments—South Africa and Rhodesia—in London Sunday night.

Some fought a pitched battle with police and supporters of Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime in the Strand outside Rhodesia House. Others slashed windows in South Africa House on Trafalgar Square.

More than 50 glass panes were shattered when a crowd of 500, breaking away from the main body of several thousand protest marchers, turned their attention to South Africa House.

Pennies, bricks, trash cans and even umbrellas were thrown against windows. A lone police sergeant held some of the crowd at bay until police reinforcements arrived.

The main battle raged between supporters and opponents of Smith's government outside Rhodesia House, a few hundred yards away along the Strand.

It made a stormy interlude in the 28-nation Commonwealth Prime Ministers Conference, which opened here last week.

Most Commonwealth leaders were in the country or at their hotels for a weekend rest.

The Rhodesian issue has produced major disagreement between Britain and most of its commonwealth partners. African leaders want Britain to abandon proposals to compromise with Smith's white-minority government, which declared itself independent from Britain in 1965 rather than accept African majority rule.

Despite three successive onslaughts against Rhodesia House, the unarmed bobbies held their ground and the crowd broke up.

The Rhodesian quarters were unscathed. But plate glass store windows crashed under pressure of the crowd across the street.

The riot brought a half hour of wild confusion in the Strand.

A thin blue line of police, arms linked, separated the right-wing National Front, which supports the Smith regime, and backers of the Black People's Alliance.

"Rule Britannia!" rightists bawled. "Down with black power... We want white power. Stand by Rhodesia."

"Fascist scum!" their opponents chanted. "Long live Chairman Mao."

Nearly all the demonstrators were white. Few colored faces were seen.

Penn State president to retire

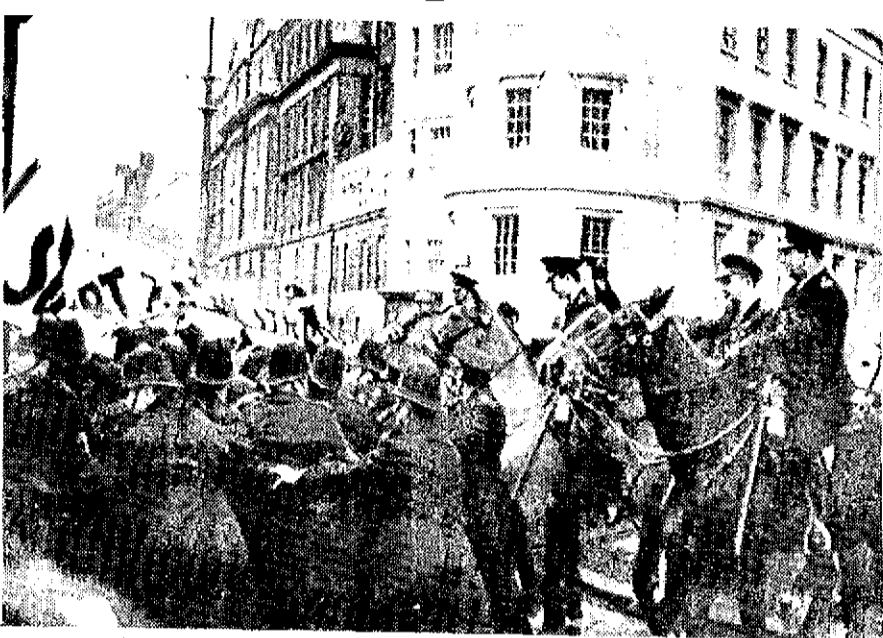

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Dr. Eric A. Walker, president of Pennsylvania State University for 13 years, announced Sunday he will retire no later than July 1, 1970.

Walker, 56, made public his decision after asking the board of trustees on Saturday to start a search for a successor now.

The tenure of Walker—who once worked as a cook's helper in Canadian lumber camps—will be the third longest in the school's history.

Under him, the student body has tripled to 38,600, the physical plant has grown from $85 million in value to $285 million and the research budget has quadrupled to $36 million.

He did not give any reason for stepping down, but he has told associates recently that he feels he has been at Penn State long enough, and it's time for someone else to take over. If he stays through his target date, he will be 60, an age when many college presidents retire from their demanding jobs.

A police cordon, backed up by mounted police, held back some of the demonstrators who tried to storm Rhodesia House in London Sunday. Demonstrators pelted police with bottles, pennies and banner poles during two charges. At least two policemen were hurt and several protesters reeled away with bloodied faces. (UPI Telephoto)

'Red' visits Fidel in Cuba on one of two hijacked jets

MIAMI (AP)—A burly, crewcut hijacker who ordered a United Airlines jet to Havana—the second plane on the Cuban route in 12 hours—told the pilot to radio ahead: "Tell Fidel Red is coming."

On the way to Havana from Florida, according to the pilot, M. D. Guyot, the hijacker was convinced the plane had landed and tried to open the door at 10,000 feet.

When the plane did touch down at Havana the man opened the door before the stairs were pushed into place, dangled down by his fingers and embraced the guards who helped him land on his feet, Guyot said.

A band of 83 teen-aged exchange students from the first of the two hijacked airliners said Sunday they thought their jet was landing in Miami until they saw the sign: "Welcome to Havana."

The Argentine exchange students bound for homes in the United States were among the 110 passengers aboard the APSA-Peruvian National Airlines Convair 990 hijacked Saturday 10 minutes before it was to land in Miami.

The plane was ordered to Cuba by a nervous little man traveling under a Mexican passport issued to Jesus Araya, who pulled a gun and said: "My life doesn't matter. Neither do the lives of you or the passengers. I want to go to Havana."

The six-foot, 220-pound hijacker who pulled a .38 pistol from his briefcase and diverted the United Boeing 727 to Cuba at 11 p.m. Saturday first tried to negotiate the hijack, according to stewardess Pat Overcast of Miami Springs.

"He said, 'If I asked you nicely would you ask the captain to take me to Havana?' I said no," Miss Overcast said. "If I asked you not so nicely would you ask the captain to take me to Havana?" I said no I wouldn't. And he said, 'If I pulled a gun would you ask the captain to take me to Havana?'"

"I said no," the stewardess continued during a crew news conference Sunday at Miami. "I thought it was a joke. A lot of passengers say that."

Senate to grill Nixon's cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate opens hearings on Richard M. Nixon's Cabinet appointments this week with the roughest going most likely in store for Interior Secretary-designate Walter J. Hickel.

The Alaska governor, whose views on conservation and water pollution have stirred a storm of criticism, appears Wednesday before the Senate Interior Committee.

"I don't think there is going to be any quick approval," said South Dakota Democrat George S. McGovern, a committee member.

He added that he suspects Hickel might be questioned three or four days at least, although he says he will be surprised if Hickel is not approved.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has predicted a "probing examination." He says his mail has been heavily against confirmation.

Democrat Harrison William S. Jr. of New Jersey, expressed "deep apprehension" about confirming Hickel in a letter Sunday to Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Williams said he wants "clarification and an adequate explanation of Hickel's 'widely quoted remarks that he sees no point in 'conservation for conservation's sake.'"

Hickel, who has made millions in real estate in his home state, gave his views on conservation at his first news conference.

"Just to withdraw an area for conservation purposes—a vast area—and lock it up for no reason...and not make it available to the public is wrong, in my opinion."

Paper fights school board

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—The Times Publishing Co. announced Sunday that it will file suit against the Erie School District for badly carrying a news reporter out of a board meeting.

Acting under a 1957 bill known as the Pennsylvania Right to Know Act, the publishing company said it would ask county court to forbid the school district from excluding its reporters from meetings.

Exhibits on view through Friday

10,000 see Shafer open state Farm Show

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Shafer and his agriculture secretary, Leland H. Bull, formally opened the 53rd Pennsylvania Farm Show Sunday with ceremonies in the main arena of the state's farm show complex and a grand tour of the exhibit area.

Upwards of 10,000 persons gathered in the arena and heard Shafer express "deep pride on behalf of all Pennsylvanians in this wonderful Farm Show."

Shafer, his daughter Jane and Mr. and Mrs. Bull rode to a center rostrum in an antique buggy. There the governor was greeted by 12 queens of various farm and farm-related organizations, presenting the governor with gifts of apples, syrup, milk and the like.

The governor pleased the crowd by sipping from the jug of milk and reminding the audience that "I am adding to the beef industry" through the good graces of Penn State University's football team.

This was a reference to the governor's winning a buffalo in a wager with Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas on the outcome of the Orange Bowl football game which Penn State won.

After the ceremonies the temporary rostrum was removed and the State Police Academy at Hershey presented an hour and one-half program featuring the trained horses and dogs maintained there.

It included demonstrations of trick riding and precision horsemanship.

The same show will be presented for the second and final time Monday.

The Farm Show and its multi-million dollar exhibits and vast crowds continue through next Friday.

Exceptionally fine, sunny weather, with temperatures in the 20s, favored the opening day of the show in contrast to snow, sleet and rain of opening days in recent years.

Mine tract donated to state

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The president of a strip mining company, who has spent most of his adult life taking the coal out of a piece of land east of Pittsburgh, has now given the land to the state for a park.

The 3,654-acre tract, almost totally restored and landscaped, is valued at more than a million dollars. It is one of the largest land gifts for a park in state history.

"Our philosophy was that we wanted to restore what we disturbed," said James Hillman, the donor and a pioneer in the restoration of mined lands.

"We can despoil our land so rapidly that someone must take a hand in saving it," he said. But Hillman's Harbor Creek Coal Co. acted 20 years before state law required the land to be restored. It caused a lot of consternation in those days, Hillman said.

"I don't want to get some people disturbed by unearthing past history," he said.

The land, in Hanover Township, just north of U.S. 22, is near the Racoon Creek Park in Beaver County, just east of the West Virginia state line. It already has ball parks and a swimming pool operated by a civic group in Burgettstown.

Hillman, 80, mined the land for 34 years, drawing 20 million tons of coal from it and employ-

LBJ's farewell address Tuesday

Congress clears deck for new team

Washington (AP) — The 91st Congress, just a week old, is still struggling to get itself organized for handling the legislation of the incoming Nixon Administration.

Then, too, the harried Congressmen will be called into joint session Tuesday at 9 p.m. EST to hear President Johnson deliver his farewell State of the Union message with a national television audience looking on.

Press Secretary George Christian said Johnson's last budget will be sent to Congress after the Presidential address, but gave no date. An economic message is to follow.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said Saturday the only measure he expects the Senate to pass in the week ahead is a House-passed bill to double the President's salary from $100,000 to $200,000.

No legislation of consequence is ticketed for action in the House where, as in the Senate, the committee assignments of members are being worked out.

Mansfield said he plans to take up the presidential pay raise bill immediately after President Johnson's State of the Union message. The bill must be passed before President-elect Nixon is inaugurated on Jan. 20 if he is to benefit from it. The Constitution bars a presidential pay raise while he's in office. Objections have been raised to the bill on grounds that it sets a poor example of combating inflationary pressures and that it would pave the way for big pay increases for members of Congress and other government officials.

However, Mansfield supports the bill and says he expects the Senate to pass it with little difficulty.

He said that, after consultation with Republican Leader

Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, he plans to call it up without consideration. Johnson's budget and economic messages also will have to be submitted to Congress next week because as Mansfield observed, "time is running out."

The President's messages reportedly are being held up while he angles for support from Nixon for recommending an extension of the 10 per cent income surtax.

As has been the case at the start of Congress for 16 years, the Senate is embroiled in a fight over a drive by bipartisan group of senators to make it easier to cut off filibusters.

A pending amendment to the rules would permit debates to be choked off by three-fifths of the senators voting instead of the two-thirds majority now required.

Mansfield reiterated that he hopes to get this issue resolved before the end of next week.

Wayne man killed while sledding

BROWDALE — A 51-year-old Forest City R.D. 2 man was killed instantly Saturday when he was struck by a panel truck while sledding down a hill in this northern Wayne County community.

Adolph Bullett was pronounced dead at the scene by Wayne County Coroner Bob Jennings. Bullett, according to Jennings, died of a compound fractured skull, lacerated brain and multiple skull injuries.

Driver of the panel truck, Elias Semenyshyn, 49, of 104 Front St., Forest City, was charged with involuntary manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident.

Free on bail

He was arraigned before Waymart Justice of the Peace Harold Stearns and released under $3,000 bail.

Honesdale State Police said Bullett was sledding at 9:25 a.m. Saturday down Township Route T-538 (Brownvale Road), which is a spur off the main street in Brownvale.

Semenyshyn was driving his truck up the hill when it struck the right front of the sled. Troopers said Semenyshyn apparently continued on his way after striking the sled.

Trooper Harrison Baltasar obtained a description of the Semenyshyn vehicle upon investigation and went to the motorist's home when Semenyshyn apparently said he struck the sled with the truck.

Police said that Bullett, who is mentally retarded, normally went sledding on the hill. Sledding was his prominent winter sport.

A passing motorist found the victim and summoned police. Jennings said the victim's clothing will be sent to the State Police crime laboratory to officially determine whether Bullett came in contact with the panel truck. The truck was impounded by police.

A hearing for Semenyshyn will be conducted at a later date.

Funeral services for Bullett will be conducted at 9 a.m. Tuesday from the Jones Funeral Home, Forest City with a mass at 9:30 a.m. in St. Anthony's Church. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

Friends may call from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

Hunt is accused of murdering his wife, stuffing her body in the trunk of a car and later abandoning it on Rt. 46, near the Belvidere cutoff.

The woman's body was discovered by State Police from Blairtown after the car was towed from the scene and searched for identification.

State Police issued a warrant for Hunt's arrest. Hunt was traced to East St. Louis and arrested by police in that city.

Not enough poor families

Area schools miss lunch aid

MILFORD — Schools in Pike and Wayne Counties do not qualify for special assistance in lunch programs since there are not enough children from low income families.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture Consumer and Marketing Service announced that funds are being made available to provide noon meals to more than one million children from low income families.

In the Pike and Wayne County area, however, there are not enough of these children in order for the schools to qualify under the program. This was revealed by Mrs. Dorothy Dixon supervisor of home economics education and school food service Wayne, Pike, Lackawanna and Wyoming Counties.

Reimbursements

Mrs. Dixon said the school district for the meals to children from low income families, are reimbursed 3.7 cents per lunch served. Usual lunch prices range from 25 cents to 35 cents.

She explained, however, that children from low incomes are provided free lunches upon recommendation of the school principals. She explained that even these cases are few.

The Department of Agriculture reports that since additional funds are being made available for the special assistance lunch programs, schools would receive a rate increase in reimbursements from 15 to 29 cents.

Schools in Wayne and Pike Counties, however, receive food for the district lunch programs from the Department of Agriculture.

Mrs. Dixon said the special assistance lunch program could easily be inaugurated if any school district qualifies. But as yet, the area seems just a little too affluent.

Cooperation necessary item

It was pleasing to note that there will be cooperation between the Stroudsburg Area Merger Study Committee and the Pennsylvania Economic League after all, as far as the study of merger possibilities between Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg is concerned.

Recently there has been grave doubt as to whether there would be any cooperation between the two organizations in this important study.

We favor at least the merger of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg and a combination of their governmental services.

However, it is not a step to be taken carelessly. The various aspects of the move must be carefully thought out, planned and explained to residents of the two boroughs and surrounding areas.

There can't be any breakdown in communications during the study and during explanation of any decisions made during the project that has been talked about in the past and rekindled by the SAMS.

A great deal of friction has been built up between SAMS and PEL in recent months, but much of the trouble apparently was ironed out during last Thursday's meeting, much to the delight of all concerned.

It would be to our greatest benefit to have Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg merge with Delaware Water Gap, Stroud Township, Smithfield, Middle Smithfield and Hamilton townships.

Our various governmental services should be enlarged and strengthened to withstand demands that will undoubtedly be applied in the future, especially our police forces and fire departments.

A larger single community should be more attractive to industry, business and people alike. It will have more to offer — especially in the field of safety and protection.

The entire project should be carefully studied and subsequent action should take place with a thought for the future, not the past — or even the present.

Alertness pays off

The alertness of both the Stroudsburg police force and fire department was very much in evidence last week when members of each service saved a 10-year-old girl from serious smoke inhalation and even possible death.

Patrolman Kenneth O. Williams and volunteer fireman Richard C. Everitt broke the lock on the door during a trailer fire at 17 Beers St., and carried Mary Ann Rutt to safety.

Mary Ann, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rutt Jr., had been sleeping in the trailer at the time that burning grease from a pot on the stove was responsible for the smoke scare.

It is instances such as this that almost daily drive home the important roles that police and firemen play in our lives.

Neither the police force or firemen can ever be too well prepared for any type of emergency. They should always be as well trained as possible and the bearers of the best equipment possible, under the limited finances which are available to both departments.

A written agreement between the Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Stroud Township police forces that will become official in February will greatly improve our police protection.

One of the secrets of successful fire fighting through the years has been a backup system between fire departments throughout the United States. When the job gets too big, there's always another fire department waiting in the wings to add a helping hand.

Police and firemen have also had a reputation of cooperativeness over the years and that cooperation has been most visible in our community, with last week's venture the most recent.

Our police and firemen are playing major roles in the rapid, orderly and safe development of the area.

Their strength is also our strength.

Commission to be formed

Reorganization key word in Nixon's plans

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — One of President Richard Nixon's first tasks will be to order a fundamental reappraisal of the whole structure of government. He will create a Commission on Government Reorganization with broader powers and a broader mandate than the Hoover Commissions of the 1950s.

Nixon, in both public and private discussions, has spoken with intense concern about the need to improve the efficiency of the gigantic government machine, including especially the relationship of the Federal apparatus to state and local governments.

But his proposed Commission would go beyond the Hoover assignment which concentrated on consolidating activities and eliminating waste and duplication. Nixon intends to give the new study group a basic mission to find out what the people "want" from government before attempting to find out how those wants can be satisfied.

The President-elect touched on his commission proposal in a little-noticed talk last June before he received the Republican nomination. Nixon spoke of appointing a blue-ribbon mixture of management experts, top-level government officials and "the best academic talent from many disciplines." Vice President Spiro Agnew will be intimately involved in the work of the commission.

New posts created

Since the second Hoover panel made its report in 1955, three new cabinet departments have been created. Entirely new patterns of Federal involvement in local government have developed. And Nixon is disturbed that the individual citizen must all too often fight his way through "layers upon layers of authority."

Essentially, the incoming President wants the Reorganization Commission to investigate every practical method of decentralizing government, getting it "closer to the people," shifting as many functions as possible to state and local governments.

In some instances, Nixon said, this might require entirely new instrumentalities "to involve the people at the community level directly in the decisions that affect their own lives."

Waiting for the bell

Don MacLean

At your own risk

WASHINGTON — A businessman friend is in Mexico City and we received this letter from him:

"This is all very strange, but unless I have my directions confused the birds here fly for the winter. Of course, it's colder than anything here now, particularly at night, yet the natives are stubbornly carrying on in the belief that they live in a tropical climate."

"They do this despite evidence to the contrary, such as Mexico's few mangy palm trees, recently planted, which are withering and dying left and right. And none of the houses make any provision for heat, such as a furnace. Oh, there are a few fireplaces here and there, but the best they do is smoke up the house and add to the air pollution."

"Speaking of the latter, the smog in the mornings and everybody is crying and hacking all day long. If I didn't know better, I'd swear I was in Los Angeles."

"Traffic is ridiculous. And unregulated. Everyone wants to play 'chicken.' The 'right-of-way' is determined on guts alone. No one pays the slightest attention to stop signs, if there are any, and the idea, apparently is to barrel into an intersection before someone else beats you to it. Broken headlight glass is everywhere, although occasionally it is swept into neat little piles next to the curb."

Jay-runners

"All of this is compounded by jay-running pedestrians, livestock, carts, wagon, bicycles, motorcycles and buses. And, oh, the buses! They look alike, actually, they seem to be operated like cabs and owned by different people. The drivers, mostly illiterate, race each other to his stops to grab passengers."

"Once loaded, and they cram in more people that you can believe, they rush through the streets trying to unload and return for more. It is not uncommon, by the way, to see two buses speeding side-by-side toward a stop, where apprehensive passengers are waiting to get on. As you might expect, this results in some deaths."

It is not uncommon, by the way, to see two buses speeding side-by-side toward a stop, where apprehensive passengers are waiting to get on. As you might expect, this results in some deaths."

"There are lengthy news accounts of bus accidents, usually ending with the line, 'The driver fled.' He flees not so much from the police as from the friends and relatives of those killed and injured. After hiding out, he gets another bus, elsewhere in the city, and resumes as before."

"The police? Forget it. Two policemen will walk along, in the same direction, but a block apart. They give frequent toots on their whistles to reassure each other that everything's O.K. and, I guess, to notify holdup men that they're coming."

It's not that they've stolen much United States gasoline in Thailand, it's just that Thai officials' cars get 5,000 miles to the gallon.

If Rep. Adam Clayton Powell had real nerve, he'd put his wife back on the payroll.

Your questions

Is there any special reason why children who cough a great deal during the night don't do so during the day?

The coughs of children seem to be less apparent during the day because the cough is less disturbing to the family and sometimes is unheard during play. When, however, there is a distinct cough that starts at bedtime, the prime suspect should be an allergy of some kind. When there is a known allergic background, efforts must be concentrated on keeping the "cough room" free of dust, furry toys and curtains. Mattress and pillows can be covered with non-allergic material. Trial and error is the only way to rule out a cough of allergic origin before intensive scratch tests are made for offending substances.

Infections of the nose and the sinuses may be responsible for coughs, mucoid and infectious secretions dripping down the back of the throat can cause a cough. X-ray of the chest may be of value to rule out chronic bronchitis. Increasing the humidity of the room, especially during the winter time, may lessen the cough. Cough syrups and medicines purchased over the counter without prescriptions may do far more harm than good by suppressing a cough when the real need is to stimulate it. Coughs deserve study and a doctor's treatment.

Markin time

They trample on the finest things.

With bodies strong, they force ahead.

Although each body works and sings,

The feeble soul is almost dead.

Luther Markin

Both in the study process and later on a formalized continuing basis, Agnew will be the key man in the effort to move government closer to the people and to make it more "responsive", as Nixon put it.

The President-elect recognizes that the "decentralized" approach will require a substantial strengthening and modernizing of state and local governments if the concept is to work at all.

Nixon recognizes, too, that the transition will not be accomplished without a good deal of trial and error. But, he thinks the effort will be welcomed locally because it will help to wipe away the frustrating notion that "you can't fight City Hall" and replace it, hopefully, with a "sense of community."

Nixon is thinking largely of the disenfranchised blacks and students of America who feel they have been ignored in the governmental process. He argues that the "alienated" can't be bought off with more money or beaten off with more police.

But the President-elect said, many of them can be brought back into the system by making them participants in the decisions that affect them directly where they live. The tone of Nixon's remarks is very similar to that of the late Robert Kennedy who had only begun to develop his thesis of "participatory politics" when he was struck down last June.

There is strong bi-partisan support in principle at the Capitol for the Nixon objectives, notably in a revamping of the Federal grant-in-aid system. But the rub will come on techniques and methods — should there be tax-sharing with state governments or "block" grants to states and cities with the loosest of Federal strings attached?

Much groundwork has been done in this field by the Muskie Sub-committee on Intergovernmental Relations and by the separate Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations on which both Agnew and Maine's Sen. Edmund Muskie have been serving.

A commission study, issued last September, affirms the new president's anxiety over the growing chasm between disaffected citizens and government. It says that re-establishing a "sense of community" in overcrowded urban areas is an "overriding challenge of our times."

Roscoe Drummond

Political future?

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the fourth in a series of five articles prepared by Roscoe Drummond and son Geoffrey on President-elect Richard M. Nixon, the problems he will face in office and how he will act to solve the many difficulties confronting the United States.)

WASHINGTON — Does Richard Nixon have a political future?

This question is not so astonishing. Nixon sometimes asks it of himself and so do his close associates.

They say candidly that theirs may be a one-term administration because, if Nixon takes the hard decisions to meet the hard problems, the voters may not like it. Hence out after four years.

But Nixon doesn't really accept this as the final answer.

He sees the prospect of such "dynamic change" in the Republican Party that his presidency could build a new voter coalition as durable as the New Deal-Fair Deal coalition which elected Democratic presidents for all but eight of the last 36 years.

Nixon is aware that the American electorate, although it came to rest on Nov. 5 in an almost even division between himself and Hubert Humphrey, is in a state of flux, that neither party has anything like a firm grip on a majority and that a wholly new and perhaps very solid voter coalition can be won or lost by either in the next two years.

Vote for change

The election itself convinces Nixon that the basis for an expanding and majority Republican Party has, at least in part, been laid. He sees this in the fact that, while Humphrey's support nearly equalled his own, the total vote for a change was 57 per cent. (Nixon, 43.6 per cent; Wallace, 13.4 per cent). The judgment of the plotters is that, if this had been a two-way election, Nixon would have won by a margin of at least 10 per cent. All through the year a substantial majority for new leadership was evident.

The crucial questions: how can Nixon transform a majority vote for change into majority support for Nixon and how can he create a new voter coalition which could keep the Republicans in power for some years to come?

That's the task he is setting for himself. He can do it only:

If he can bring the country together again by restoring a climate of mutual trust.

If the American people want tough answers to tough problems and will reward a President who "tells it like it is."

If he can persuade Negroes that racial justice

The Pennsylvania Story

Farm show this week

HARRISBURG — State government, politics Bureau and the new 1969 Legislature take a back seat in the Capital City this week in favor of Pennsylvania's annual agricultural extravaganza — the State Farm Show.

The Legislature gave up the ghost last week following its "organizational grunts and groans" and won't be back until Monday, Jan. 27, following its traditional habit of getting out of town when the Farm Show is on board and then too, vacating the village the following week for the inauguration of President-elect Nixon.

Actually, lawmakers keep away from Harrisburg whenever anything big is going on in the city. In all fairness, the reason for this is that they have low priority on hotel rooms because Farm Show people and conventions book the space a year in advance.

The Farm Show is a refreshing change from the parade of politicians in this town.

Emphasis on youth

With emphasis on youth, the annual display of farm product and home arts and crafts has the greatest appeal for young people.

Many boys and girls work all year on special 4-H Club projects or vocational school programs for the chance to come to Harrisburg in January with the hope of winning an award. This healthy competition and the adventure of "going to the farm show" is a great thing for the youth of Pennsylvania.

The Future Farmers of America and Future Homemakers of America both have a round of activities during the week. Accompanied by their parents or their teachers, the young people from rural Pennsylvania set the Farm Show pace and get the biggest kicks out of seeing what their colleagues have accomplished in growing, grooming and displaying the products of farm, garden and vocational schools.

Many a young farmer will bunk down next to his prize entry in the livestock competitions, and camp day and night through the show. Others have bunks in some areas of the exhibition halls just to be near the scene of action.

In addition to the boom for youth, the Farm Show gives the manufacturers a chance to display the latest mechanical equipment in farming. And they come from across the nation to put on elaborate shows of machinery designed to produce more with less time and effort.

The very latest in all sorts of equipment can be seen in the vast exhibit hall.

Another feature of the show is the "baked potato" put out by the Potato Growers' Assn. (There is some suspicion, however, that this appeals more to the city folk who come to see the show.)

Probably the most colorful feature is the Folk Dance Festival and Contest held in the large arena. And then there is the horse pulling and tractor driving competitions in the arena (but somehow this doesn't quite have the general appeal of dancing.)

The large arena itself is a place to behold. Many visitors move in early in the afternoon to be sure of a seat for evening activities.

The Farm Show has something for everyone, including such "agricultural" activities as nut growing and Christmas Tree growing.

Moonshine reflected on American abroad

PADULA, ITALY — Some of the glory of the astronauts' trip around the moon rubs off on Americans around the world.

Capt. Peter Stowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Stowell of East Stroudsburg, R.D. 3, stationed at the U.S. Field Hospital at Vicenza, Italy, had a pleasant reminder of that on New Year's Day.

After attending the general reception at the club he and other young officers went out for dinner in Padua.

A note arrived at their table:

"Dear Sirs: We are very happy to see you today, the first of the new year. Please accept our best wishes for your happiness and for that of the USA people, particularly for glorious astronauts Borman, Lovell and Anders."

Just Between Us— By Bobby Westbrook

Maybe the young people don't think that there's a generation gap but I do. And not just because they're bigger, healthier, smarter and prettier. They don't turn blue in the cold either, that's why.

But I certainly had plenty of company in my shivering, shaking, hunched up scuttling around town on Friday with practically everybody under 30. Somehow the fact that on Thursday the temperature got up to freezing and you could actually open the door with wet hands without freezing to the doorknob, had spoiled us.

Maybe generation gap is just a word we made up, and if we tend to think it's wider now than in previous generations, it's not because of any basic change in parents or in children.

It's because the total sum of human knowledge has increased so enormously and the conditions of life have changed so drastically. They'll never know what it was like to dress over a hot air register on a winter morning, to wear long underwear under lisle stockings, what having a job, any job, meant during the depression.

And I'll never understand modern math. Amplified music quivers my breast bone and flashing psychedelic movies give me a headache, and whatever happened to happy endings?

But fortunately, I don't have to appreciate the same things they do to be able to appreciate and enjoy them. Everybody loved the program and would have enjoyed talking back if we hadn't been worried about their homework and bed time.

The final exchange was when, after listing the big discoveries of the past, Richard pointed out that they'd all been made by young people. And one of the members flashed back "We know. We were young once, too."

When will your child be ready for her first professional haircut? The age varies with the subject and the rate of her hair growth. Some babies may have as much hair as a three or four year old. Others might have just an inch of hair right through the second year. A good rule: Have it cut when it's too long. And "too long" means any amount of hair that cannot be managed, look well-groomed or is out of proportion to the child's face. Proper trimming of a child's hair is very important, even more so than that of grownups. Whatever tendency to curl exists is aided by skillful cutting. And poor cutting can actually destroy any natural inclination to wave.

Resist the temptation to trim or cut hair yourself. Haircutting for best results, is a job for professionals like DOROTHY'S BEAUTY SALON, 572 Main St., Stroudsburg. Also resist cutting unwanted hair on face, arms or legs for Dorothy specializes in electrolysis and will give you expert care. Call today 421-2432.

Youth talks across generation gap

STROUDSBURG — How do you discuss the Generation Gap with young people if they don't admit it's there? However, the youthful panel at the Stroud Community Woman's Club meeting at the YMCA had lots of other things to talk about.

The panel took the wind out of the moderator's sails with their answer to the first question he threw out for discussion.

"Does the generation gap really exist or is it just a phrase made up by adults in exasperation at young people they can't understand," asked Rev. David High of the four high school students.

He expected they'd say "Yes".

Instead, Sally Newcomb, of East Stroudsburg High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Newcomb, said "I don't think there's as much of a gap as many of the articles make it seem."

"We are trying to form our own philosophy," said Danny Blewitt, also of ESHS and son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blewitt, and they already have theirs. It's a matter of individuals at different stages of maturity."

"We've always had a gap between generations," agreed Richard McClelland of Stroudsburg High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McClelland. "It's just that it's more obvious now. Parents and children have grown up in two entirely different worlds, so there's bound to be a gap in understanding."

Wendy Wells of Stroudsburg High, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wells added: "You can read about the generation gap, in every generation. Look at the flapper era when parents were so upset because girls were having their hair cut off. Now we're all letting it grow."

The difference between what adults say and what they do was something else again. They admitted that parents might be trying to keep their children from making the same mistakes they themselves had made.

"But will they own up to their mistakes or do they make excuses," asked Richard.

They were reassuring in discussing whether the so-called New Morals represented a real sexual revolution.

Danny: "I don't think that morals have changed. They still depend on the individual — it's a personal matter."

Richard: "Look at movies, they have changed only in the sense that where they used to imply what was going to happen when a man and woman went into a bedroom, now they go on and on. When adults have seen enough of that kind of movies maybe they'll change again."

Sally: "Oh, I don't think they'll ever go back that far! to laughter."

Wendy: "One healthy thing is that people no longer think the human body is something to be ashamed of."

While there was general agreement on sex education in the schools they weren't unanimous in when it should begin.

The boys agreed the sooner the better. "It should be started much younger — by the time you get it in biology in ninth or tenth grade — you've heard!"

"I don't think it should be thrown at them too young," disagreed Wendy, "not the whole scientific bit."

"It should be taught by teachers who are open about it," said Sally. "Where it is part of the general picture like problems of Democracy. It's awful when the teachers are embarrassed talking about it in health classes."

When it came to the war, their opinions were much more in accord with the popular conception of what young people think.

"At 17, you feel that human life is worth something and when adults say 'Let's bomb them all out' it sounds as if they didn't think so."

They also agreed that they thought the Vietnam war was different than previous wars. Some of the comments:

"Then we were fighting for ideals."

"In World Wars I and II, our parents and grandparents still had strong ties with the Europe their parents had come from."

"It's hard to understand why we're in Vietnam at all."

They were agreed about the draft, too, as being "all messed up", but something males had to put up with. Draft-card burning and protest marches didn't accomplish much, they felt.

"The draft is necessary," said Danny, "but maybe it would be better if all males at the age of 18 knew they were going to have to do some sort of service, if it were more standardized. Maybe we'd all mature. People who live in ghettos could get out and experience another kind of life, and people who are now isolated in one small spot could see something of world problems."

"I'm not that generous," quipped Richard. "I'd have them go even further and draft all the girls, too. There are a lot of telephone-answering and chauffeuring that girls can do just as well."

"That might be a good idea," agreed Wendy, "if everybody could work together toward good things rather than destruction."

None of them were in favor of destroying the social structure and starting over fresh, although all of them agreed that changes should be

Poor People's March torpedoed 'war on poverty' myth

(Editor's note: This is the first of five parts dealing with the failure of the government's vaunted "war on poverty" and the approach to the problem President-elect Richard M. Nixon has promised to take.)

By DAVID B. OTTAWAY
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The tall, lanky Negro youth leaned over the table in the August Senate subcommittee room, poked an accusing finger at the grim-faced senators, and in a voice trembling with rage shouted:

"You guys can't solve this problem of poverty. You guys are the problem."

This was the scene before the Senate Subcommittee on Employment, Manpower, and Poverty the second day of the Poor People's March on Washington early last May.

One after another, the leaders of the march stood up to denounce the shortcomings of the Johnson Administration's once much-touted "war on poverty."

Some said the anti-poverty programs were a "flop" and a "farce;" others complained money for the programs was being eaten up by a voracious bureaucracy.

"People are tired of being used in a game to promote bureaucracy," said one Mexican-American. "Millions and millions of dollars have been spent and nothing has been done."

More than anything else to date, the Poor People's March on Washington pointed up the failure of the "Great Society" to live up to its announced goal of "total victory" over poverty in America.

Never before had Congressmen been subjected to such a shower of abusive language. Never before had government officials, sheltered behind solid marble walls and an impenetrable bureaucracy, heard so loudly the anguished cry of the wretched of this nation.

In its psychological effect, the Poor People's March was as dramatic and revealing as the Viet Cong Tet offensive: it shattered all remaining myths and cracked the thick walls of government propaganda about the "war on poverty."

The dramatic and often unruly confrontation between the poor people and Washington officialdom, if it did nothing else, raised a number of questions about what really the federal government has accomplished since President Johnson announced four years ago an "unconditional war on poverty" and promised "total victory."

Since the Poor People's March, the aims and methods of the war on poverty have come under a withering attack by Republican leaders led by President-elect Richard M. Nixon.

The outgoing Johnson Administration has replied with a barrage of statistics that leaves one wondering what, if any, the relation is between money spent and poverty eliminated.

According to government figures, federal aid to the poor has increased from $9.9 billion in 1960, when President Kennedy was elected, to $25.6 billion this year — an impressive 150 per cent increase.

In terms of total spending, the outlay for social welfare programs has jumped from one-ninth to one-seventh of the budget during the same period.

The number of domestic programs has increased from 45 at the end of the Eisenhower Administration to more than 445 today.

The number of poor people has dropped from 38.9 million, or 22.1 per cent of the population, in 1959 to 25.9 million, or 13.3 per cent, in 1967.

The federal government considers a non-farm family of four "poor" if its annual income is less than $3,335. For a farm family of four, the poverty line is set at $2,345.

There is no question the federal government has come a long way in facing up to the blight of poverty. It was only in the wake of the civil rights movement of the early 1960's that attention began to focus on the "invisible poor."

From the dim shadows, the poor have emerged to command the attention of Congress and the spot light of the news media: starvation, once dismissed as "impossible" in this land of plenty, has been brought to a national television audience in "living color."

Yet, the record shows that being conscious of the problem of poverty is one thing, solving it quite another. There are, after all, still 26 million poor despite a booming economy, and the unemployment rate among nonwhite teenagers has more than doubled between 1960 and 1967 and now stands at a shocking 25 per cent.

Meanwhile, critics of war on poverty, today legion in number, point to the uncontrolled proliferation of programs, shoddy administration, and rash of scandals in local projects involving embezzlement, forgery, dope-taking, rape, and murder.

The labyrinth of anti-poverty programs boggles the mind.

By 1968, the web in which the war on poverty was entangled comprised 459 programs administered by 21 federal departments, 400 regional offices, and an untold number of state agencies.

There are presently 50 different programs for education, 35 for housing, 62 for community facilities, 28 for culture and recreation, and at least 28 for manpower development.

Until recently, few persons, in or out of government, knew just how many programs existed and for which purposes. But in June 1967, the Office of Economic Opportunity produced the first complete listing of the 459 domestic social and economic programs.

While it is popular to blame cold-hearted bureaucrats and short-sighted welfare officials for the "ghastly mess," as one New York City official called the war on poverty there, it must be said that they were not the architects of the labyrinth; rather the Johnson Administration and Congress built it.

The criticism that Garth L. Mangum, co-director of the George Washington University Center for Manpower Policy Studies, has made of the proliferation of manpower programs seems equally valid for the entire anti-poverty effort.

"Administration officials and members of Congress have been too impatient to await the results of new and existing programs and to allow for restructuring, removal of negative elements, and finally their expansion into effective programs."

"As a result," writes Mangum in a study prepared for the Senate Subcommittee on Economic Progress, "there has been an excessive resort to gimmicks and to attempts to devise instant policies for instant success."

Numbers games

"The procedure has become a familiar one," wrote Mangum. "New approaches are designed intuitively rather than empirically. They are launched with public relations fanfare, complete with numerical goals and early target dates. Manipulation of numbers to 'prove' success then becomes a major staff function until a quiet burial of the goals and targets can be devised."

But if Administration officials and Congressmen have been excessively impatient, so, too,

HEALTHY DIGESTION

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder

The nervous system is important in digestion. It coordinates various organs of digestion, and when the nervous system is impaired, the organs cannot act in a healthy normal way.

Food must be chewed and the nerves direct the action of the jaw, tongue muscles, and the glands of the mouth and stomach and order additional blood supply; and when food enters the intestines control again the muscles for complete assimilation. In addition excites the gall bladder and large intestines. Any one of these functions not working properly can make digestion irregular. This is why Chiropractic care is necessary to allow the nervous system to maintain healthy digestion.

LINDENWOOD . . . Maybe the reason that this dinette hasn't sold is that nobody knows what the formica finish will match. When you're trying to match cabinets, who knows what Lindenwood is. Actually it looks something like a light maple (that didn't quite make it). For a five foot long table and six chairs (gold, beige and white) you'll only pay . . . $80. (Please get it out of our way). P.S. It's in a carton, otherwise we'd have to charge more than $80.

GLASS, GLASS AND MORE GLASS . . . OUR MANAGER has some hang up about hutches not looking as nice unless there are pieces of colored glass displayed in them. One small problem . . . we keep selling the hutches and then the glass has to be moved so that when you walk through the store, there are glass vases, glass, candy dishes, glass pitchers setting all over the place. Maybe, if we can just sell it all (priced from $1.50), we can persuade the Manager not to reorder and we'll be free of this "junk" (sorry, I mean those lovely pieces of rainbow glass) once and for all . . . All pieces 1/2 off.

POLE LAMP STANDS . . . Our ceiling is suspended by wires so we can't brace a pole lamp up against it. We use a special stand. If you have a pole lamp which you'd like to have freestanding . . . or a ceiling hung on wires so you can't use a pole lamp . . . we have six stands to sell . . . $5 each.

ONE OF A KIND. A triangular table for $20 (dell sell for $48) and a square Bassett table with formica top for just $19 (was $39).

SALE ENDS THIS SATURDAY IF YOU ARE GOING TO NEED FURNITURE BE SURE TO STOP AT ROSEN'S THIS WEEK.

IF YOUR GUESTS LIKE TO SIT ON TABLES, we have just the answer for you. Formica tops on maple finish tables that are so strong you can sit on them and we have both step tables and end tables at $22 (regular price, $29.95). There is one problem . . . someone sat something heavier than people) on the coffee tables during shipping so we have four damaged coffee tables in this group . . . $15 each, as is.

FOR INTERLUCELS ONLY. Evidently not enough of our customers own an overabundance of books or they have enough bookcases. At any rate we have bookcases (three and five shelf) in maple and walnut which did sell from $24.95 to $49.95. Any one of them for just $16 (K.D. which means knocked down and you put them together.)

EVERYONE'S SERVING COFFEE . . . At least that's the only explanation we have for being stuck with four end tables and two round drum tables in this group of Lane tables with walnut bases and slate tops . . . no coffee tables. Were $59 each . . . now $39 just because everybody bought all the coffee tables.

WHY, OH WHY haven't these maple ash tray stands moved? Maybe these haven't sold because lots of people have given up smoking. We don't want to start anyone on a bad habit, but if you already have this bad habit of smoking, try offsetting it with a good habit . . . saving money. Reg. $18, just $8 (only $5)

GOT AN EXTRA $88? Cause if you have, we have JUST ONE extra Kroehler recliner in gold tweed which you may have for just $88 (reg. $119.)

MARBLE IS THE THING . . . We know people who drive all the way to Vermont just to pick up a piece of marble and yet we are stuck with three end tables with marble tops and a marble coffee table. Don't drive all the way to Vermont (roads are too slippery anyway), just come into Rosen's . . . End Tables, $35 each . . . coffee table, $48.

OUR MANAGER IS SOMETIMES CONFUSED. For some unknown reason he has put a group of walnut Lane tables on sale (that lovely modern style with the inlay design). Before he realizes what he's done . . . Hurry in. Four end tables and two coffee tables (reg. $39) at just $29 . . . one "boomerang" coffee table (reg. $89) for just $50 and one Round commode (reg. $99) for just $60. Better get 'em before he gets his thinking organized again.

HOLES IN OUR HEADS and holes in our rugs. To put 24 x 36 rug samples on display, there must be a small hole in it to fit over the rack. These are expensive samples and now they have been discontinued . . . The little holes barely show if you can use a 24 x 36 piece of carpet for just $1.

NEED WALL TO WALL CARPETING IN YOUR CAR? . . . Many people are looking for carpeting to use in station wagons and in cars. . . Well, we have it. Remnants in narrow widths up to 15 foot long . . . Just $5 for any piece. If your car is already carpeted, these are great for ahhs or area rugs.

A BIT GAUDY BUT OH MY! . . . These striped rugs must be seen to be believed. Reds, Blues, Greens, Golds. They have been selling great so there's really no reason for putting them on sale except that we need enough items to make it worth your while to come into Rosen's. There are 6 x 9's and 9 x 12's in stock. Come in and see . . . 20 per cent off on those in stock. "Now $103," for 9x12 size.

TRADITIONAL . . . This is always a popular style of living room suite for us so we know we would sell this sofa and chair for the regular price of $319 if we left it on the floor. But, just out of the goodness of our hearts, we'll let you have this green and gold damask sofa and chair for $260.

OUR MANAGER . . . NEVER WRONG . . . but just this once, he picked the wrong cover for a modern sofa and chair. The cover is green and gold with loose back cushions in a matching print. It's a good looking suite but somehow these colors don't set it off. On our manager's behalf, we must admit that these colors should have been perfect but somehow when the group was made up, it lacked the "zip" most modern groups have. It should sell for $349 but you may have it for $265 (the manager is being charged the difference).

PERFECT FOR THE BABY. We have a four drawer white chest (made by the same company who makes the unfinished pieces but they got ambitious and painted this one) . . . reg. $35 for only $22.

Opening lead—five of hearts. Deception holds an important place in every bridge player's bag of tricks, whether employed by him as declarer or as a defender. The aim is to persuade an opponent that a condition exists which actually does not, or that a condition does not exist which actually does.

One of the most famous examples of deception ever recorded appears in a book called Right through the Pack, by Robert Darvas and Norman de V. Hart.

West leads a heart and South wins East's queen with the king. Declarer's course of play seems exceptionally clear. To make the contract he must bring home either the spade suit or the diamond suit. For five spade tricks to mature requires a double finesse based on the hope that West has the K-J, while to make five diamond tricks merely requires East to have the king.

Declarer therefore follows the percentage play of leading a low spade to the ace, intending to try the diamond finesse next. But East, who can see that his king of diamonds is about to go the way of all flesh, makes the extremely clever play of dropping his king of spades on the ace.

This play gives South new food for thought. Since East appears to have the singleton king of spades, a diamond finesse now looks foolish. If East's spade play is on the level, South's proper course of action is automatic. He returns to his hand by cashing the A-K of clubs, leads the nine of spades, and finesses on the assumption that he will score five spade tricks, a heart, a diamond and three clubs.

Unlucky! East wins the nine of spades with the jack, returns a heart, and South finishes down two in a hand where he would surely have made the contract but for East's extraordinary play of the king of spades on the ace.

Alcoholics work out problems, future at quiet retreat

HICKORY, Pa. (AP) — The gray farmhouse sits next to a lake in the hilly wooded countryside. Fat little ducks lounge lazily in the afternoon sun.

Three men are building a new chimney on one side of the house. They laugh and joke with each other as they mix cement, lift concrete blocks and hoist them up into place.

Their pace is leisurely and relaxed. They don't have to work. But they are not simply working to rebuild the chimney. They are working at rebuilding themselves.

For this is Serenity Farms, a 101-acre home for recovering alcoholics. And it wasn't too long ago that these same men sat in jail cells or hospital wards or were sleeping off a drunk in an alley. Now they plow the fields, feed and slaughter livestock and handle the routine chores of farm life.

"We don't refer to this as an institution, but as a home," says Frank Fagan Jr., a lean man in his 40s with a head of close-cropped white hair. "Institutions treat alcoholics like children. Here we stress reality. A lot of these men have led adventuresome lives. In life they aren't going to be making leather wallets or playing dominos."

Fagan is a recovered alcoholic and Serenity Farms, located 25 miles southwest of Pittsburgh, is his idea. He considers it a pioneer venture in alcoholic treatment and rehabilitation and envisions places like it springing up all over the country—quiet retreats where lonely, shaky and confused alcoholics can come to think.

"A place where a man can make some valid decisions not based on panic," Fagan says. "Maybe the decision is 'I like being a drunk.' But at least it's a decision."

In a little over a year Serenity Farms has blossomed from several rooms in an old red brick tenement house in one of Pittsburgh's worst ghetto areas into the 17-room farmhouse that can accommodate 30 men.

On their own initiative, the some 425 men who've stayed here for varying lengths of time have renovated the once run-down farmhouse and added a new wing to it. They've also built fences, animal pens, a cottage and have done considerable landscaping.

"The men who come here have been institutionalized 22 times apiece," Fagan says. "To me this says we're doing something wrong. Serenity Farms has to be made as real as possible. Otherwise we just become the 23rd institution on the list."

Fagan says the men who've been at the farm have come from all walks of life: lawyers, doctors, engineers, industrialists, laborers. "You name it," he rattles on, "soldiers of fortune and lumberjacks and we even had one guy who went to build railroads in the Orient."

The men come to the farm voluntarily and have to want to keep sober. If they have any money, they pay. If they don't, the farm will provide them with clothing, medicine and cigarettes. The farm exists solely on contributions from former alcoholics who've recuperated at the farm and other donors.

"The biggest problem for the indigent alcoholic," says Fagan, "is that when he gets out of the institution there is only one place he's accepted. That's back at the tavern. At least at Serenity Farms he gets companionship. People he can laugh and talk with."

He also gets medical attention, psychotherapy, legal advice and employment counseling from professionals.

Area wage tax collections may run behind estimates

STROUDSBURG — The earned income or wage tax enacted last summer by Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg School Boards and municipalities in these school districts is running into some complicated collection barricades.

According to a Stroudsburg school board member who wished to remain anonymous some taxpayers in the Stroudsburg school district who received their initial wage tax notice tore them up.

They saw the name Berkeimer Associates, Bangor, the collection agency for the one percent earned income tax on the initial notice and they probably wondered how somebody from outside the county could represent the districts and municipalities as a tax collection agency, the board member said.

Another maze facing Berkeimer Associates is the question of a taxpayer's address. For example a man having an East Stroudsburg

R.D. address could actually be living in the Stroudsburg School District.

Does Berkeimer count this taxpayer in the East Stroudsburg School District?

In Saylorburg some of the residents live in Hamilton Township while others live in Ross Township. Elementary and secondary students in Hamilton Township are in the Stroudsburg School District. Those students in Ross Township attend schools in Pleasant Valley School District.

How does the collection agency determine which families in Saylorburg send their children to Stroudsburg and Pleasant Valley School Districts?

The question boils down to just how efficient is the tax collection agency?

The wage tax enactment was initially complicated by the different percentages of revenue from the tax shared between the two school districts and their municipalities.

For example, in Stroudsburg School District, the district and municipalities agreed to an 80-20 per cent share of the wage tax for the last six months.

During the next six months, January to July, 1968, it was agreed that the school district and municipalities share the tax on a 50-50 basis.

Stroudsburg School District's anticipated income for the tax for one year is $145,275. But it might be a lower figure if the collection agency runs into barriers in attempting to pick up some of the taxpayers.

Present income from the wage tax for the Stroudsburg School District is running about $41,000. This low figure will rise considerably when school district taxpayers return their income tax withholding forms.

Stroudsburg Borough expects $85,000 as its share of the wage tax (20 percent for October, Nov., Dec., the first quarter and 50 per cent for the first six months of 1968).

East Stroudsburg School District's income for its 80 percent share of the $240,000 anticipated revenue of the wage tax is estimated to be $192,000.

The districts first quarter income is only $20,000 but in the next six months the income will rise sharply once taxpayers return their income forms.

The wage tax, enacted last summer by the school district, East Stroudsburg Borough and Smithfield, Middle Smithfield, Townships and Porter and Price Townships in Pike County was split on an 80-20 per cent basis until July 1, 1968.

Veterans benefits increased

(Special to the Record)

STROUDSBURG — Increased benefits are on the way for Monroe County veterans and their dependents.

Their monthly compensation and pension checks will be bigger than ever, thanks to two laws passed by Congress during the past year.

In addition, for those who are veterans of World Wars I and II and hold G. I. insurance policies, there will be an increase in dividend payments.

One of the laws provides for a new schedule of compensation payments to veterans who were disabled while in active service.

It increases, by $235 million, the annual amount to be paid to the 1,952,000 veterans now getting such aid. They had been receiving $2 billion a year, which averaged out to $1,025 per person. The new average will be $1,145.

Just how much any particular veteran will receive will depend upon the extent of his disability. Those with 100 percent disability will now get $4,800 a year, as compared with $3,600 previously. For those with 20 percent disability, on the other hand, the compensation will be $516.

Approximately 460 of Monroe County's veterans will be getting bigger compensation checks as a result. Payments to them will total $527,000 this year, it is estimated.

The increased rates will show up in the checks for January, which will be arriving in February. The Veterans Administration states that recipients will get the increases automatically, without application.

The second action taken by Congress will boost payments to other Monroe County veterans who are getting pensions for total disability that was not incurred while in active service.

The average increase, for the 1,100,000 throughout the country who are getting such pensions, will be $110 a year.

Their increase will be based upon a new formula that relates the amount they will get to other income they are receiving.

The VA announces, also, that local veterans who served in the two World Wars and have G. I. insurance policies will share in 236 million in dividends that will be distributed during the course of the year. It is $13 million more than was paid out last year.

'Broadway Joe' super; Jets humiliate Colts, 16-7

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI (UPI)—A lot of people like Joe Namath, but he annoys a lot of people too. They criticize his sideburns, the goatee he wore early this season, his swinging personal life and especially his mouth. They call him "Broadway Joe" and they sneer when they say it.

He annoyed the Baltimore Colts plenty last week when he bragged, "I guarantee it," when asked if the Jets could upset the Colts in pro football's third annual Super Bowl game.

But on Sunday he led the Jets to a 16-7 triumph—one of the biggest upsets in the history of football—and how do you call a man a braggart when he does exactly what he says he'll do? Namath made good all his boasts with a fabulous performance—completing 17 of 28 passes for 206 yards as he defied the Colts' best effort to shove his words down his throat.

The victory in the world title game was the first in three meetings for the American Football League, and it was worth $15,000 each to the Jet players.

Namath, who said after the game, "I felt we'd win, but I wasn't trying to be cocky or anything when I said that," was the man who wrought a gridiron "miracle" and humiliated the Colts of the National Football League.

The New York scores came on a four-yard touchdown sprint by Matt Snell and three field goals by Jim Turner—of 32, 30 and nine yards.

Statistics

	NY	BAL
First Downs	21	18
Rushing Yards	142	143
Passing Yards	206	181
Return Yards	34	129
Passes	17-29-0	17-42-4
Fumbles	4-38-8	3-44-3
Fumbles Lost	1	1
Yards penalized	28	23

Not until all those points were on the board for a 16-0 Jets lead did aging, aching Johnny Unitas save the embarrassed NFL champion Colts from a shutout by quarterbacking an 80-yard drive capped by Jerry Hill's one-yard touchdown plunge.

According to the experts, the Colts, who won the NFL title two weeks ago by shutting out the Cleveland Browns in a great display of defense, were supposed to throttle Namath and his friends. One NFL coach even cracked before the game, "Namath plays his first pro football game today."

But Broadway Joe and Snell, who gained 114 yards, re-wrote that script.

Namath, calling plays with the same efficiency with which he passed, completely overshadowed his rival, quarterback, Earl Morrall, who was the NFL's "Most Valuable Player" and was rewarded by being voted a new car as this game's "Most Valuable."

Namath, mixing the inside-outside running of Snell with flare and screen passes, led the Jets to a 7-0 lead at halftime and then Turner's three field goals in the second half wrapped it up.

Lou Michaels, who kicked the extra point after Baltimore's only TD, missed a pair of field goal attempts from 27 and 46 yards in two of the Colts' other drives.

The game seemed to be going according to forecast at the very start. Snell's running to the surprisingly vulnerable right side of the Colt line carried the Jets to one first down on the opening series but then the Colts held, returned a punt to their 27, and started to drive.

A Morrall pass to John Mackey hit for 19 yards and Tom Mattheis, hero of the NFL title game, ran for 10 on the second Colt play. With Hill lunging the leather, Baltimore kept driving to the Jets' 31 and a Morrall pass to Tom Mitchell made it first down on the 19.

But that's when the tide turned for the day, although the crowd didn't realize it. Three Colt plays, including two Morrall passes, gained nothing and Michaels' first field goal attempt went wide to the right.

The Colts seemed to be getting the break of the game late in the first period when Namath passed to George Sauer and the Jet end, hit hard by Lenny Lyles, fumbled the ball and Ron Porter of the Colts recovered on the Jets' 12.

Mattheis ran to the six—but in the opening seconds of the second period Morrall's pass to Tom Mitchell in the end zone bounced off Mitchell's shoulder and was intercepted by Beverly.

Namath then directed the Jets 80 yards in 12 plays for their only touchdown.

The alert Jets defense, best in the AFL, picked off four Colt passes to blunt Baltimore's air attack. Randy Beverly intercepted two in the end zone, while Johnny Sample grabbed one near the goal line and Jim Hudson stole another.

Snell started it by running four straight times to that Colt right side for a total of 26 yards. Namath missed one pass, then hit Bill Mattheis on a swing pass for six yards and Sauer on a flare for 14 to the Baltimore 34.

Sauer caught another for 11, Emerson Boozer ran for two, and Namath's swing throw to Snell for 12 yards produced a first down on the Colt nine.

Snell took it over in two runs, one for five and the second for four around the Colt right side.

Two other second-period drives ended in missed field goals—by Michaels from the 46 and Turner from the 41.

In the last minutes of the first half, Baltimore drove from its own 20 to the Jets' 15 with Mattheis running 58 yards down the right sideline for the game's longest run.

But Sample, on his knees at the Jet two, intercepted a Morrall pass to end that threat.

Two more Baltimore threats were blunted by New York interceptions. Beverly picked off another Morrall pass on the New York 2, and Jim Hudson grabbed one on the 12 as the half ended with the Jets leading 7-0.

A fumble by Mattheis, recovered New York's Ralph Baker on the Colt 33, set up Turner's first field goal from the 32 after 4:52 of the third period.

At 11:02, Turner clicked again from the 39 after a 45-yard Jet drive stalled at the Colt 23.

When a 60-yard Jet drive sputtered on the Colts' three, Turner added his final three-point.

The only thing left after that was a fantastic fourth-period piece of drama by Unitas, the Colts' aging star who was forced by injury to step aside for Morrall this season.

The Colts, who lost only one regular season game, turned to Unitas in their moment of need—and Johnny gave them one more chapter, maybe the last, in the brilliant story of the guy who stepped off the sandlots to become pro football's greatest star.

Unitas drove the Colts from their own 27 to the Jets' 26, and then Beverly stopped him by intercepting his pass intended for Jimmy Orr in the end zone.

Once again Unitas brought the Colts back, and this time it was for a touchdown. He started the drive by hitting Orr with a fourth down pass for 17 yards from his own 20, a bit of the old Unitas derring-do. He completed three more passes in the drive, which ended with Hill slamming across from the one.

The Colts had one trick left—it worked, but it wasn't enough. They tried an onside kick and Mitchell recovered it on the Jets' 44. Unitas moved them to the 19 but on fourth down, linebacker Larry Grantham batted away his pass in the end zone.

Namath ran out most of the clock, then gave the ball back in the final seconds, and the game ended with Unitas completing a pass on the 50-yard line.

Morrall completed only six of 17 passes for 71 yards, Unitas 11 of 24 for 110.

The Jets won the statistics, too—21 first downs to 18, and 337 total yards to 324.

Namath made all mates 'believe' Jets would win

MIAMI (UPI)—Out of the mouths of babes, or more specifically, one of the New York Jets' rookie defensive backs, came the plain simple statement that told the whole story of the Super Bowl game. "He believed more than anybody else," the happy, sweat-soaked 23-year-old rookie from Harvard standing there in the incredible noise and confusion of the world champions' dressing room.

"He guaranteed we would win and that's the way he really believed. He not only made me believe—he made us all believe."

"I never saw another fella like him in my life."

The rookie doing the talking was John Dockery.

The one he was talking about, of course, was Joe Namath. "He never let up all game," Dockery went on.

"Every time he'd come to the sidelines after a series he'd pat every body on the butt and keep telling us c'mon, c'mon—today is our day."

Accepting a local award last week while the Jets were training for their first Super Bowl appearance ever against the Baltimore Colts, Namath told an audience he believed the Jets were going to beat the NFL champs, even though they were as high as 19 1-2 underdogs at one time.

"Not only do I think we're gonna win," said the colorful Jet quarterback. "I guarantee it."

"That's the way I talk, you know me," Namath said after Sunday's 16-7 victory when the subject of his pre-game guarantee came up again.

"I felt we'd win but I wasn't trying to be cocky or anything about it."

Some of the Jets were a bit edgy and nervous going into their showdown meeting with the highly-touted NFL champs but not Namath.

Before trotting out on the field for the start of the game, he turned around to one of his teammates and said: "I feel loose, real loose.

"My arm is so loose I think it's gonna fall off."

Dockery, who once played baseball in the Boston Red Sox farm system but gave it up for a football career, was the only member of the Jets to hail Namath as the one who led them out from the wilderness.

Dave Herman, one of the team's offensive tackles, felt the same way. "He's fantastic," Herman said, referring to Namath and shaking his head. "Simply fantastic. The guy is so downright honest. He said we were gonna win for sure. We won. He didn't lie. He never does."

Probably no one on the Jets' roster savored the upset victory more than Larry Grantham, the weary 30-year-old veteran linebacker who first signed on nine years ago with the club when it was known as the New York Titans and something of a laughing stock throughout the AFL.

"Not in my wildest dreams did I ever imagine anything like this happening to me when I signed with the Titans in 1960," said Grantham. "We didn't know of any Joe Namath then but things got different when he came along. I don't see how any team can defend against him. He hits you where it hurts."

Another happy member of the Jets was Walt Michaels, their defensive backfield coach. Michaels' brother, Lou, is the Colts' place kicking specialist and was involved in a near fistfight in a Fort Lauderdale restaurant a week ago. But Walt Michaels smilingly had no comment about that incident.

"It was simply two hard-headed Pennsylvania ball players getting together," Michaels grinned, referring to Namath and his brother.

Lou Michaels had said all along he intended to be the first one down the field after the opening kickoff so he could break through the Jets' wedge. He kicked off all right, but somehow forgot about being the first down the field. He didn't quite make it. Neither did the Colts the rest of the afternoon.

Shula: didn't get the plays to win

MIAMI (UPI)—Baltimore coach Don Shula had high praise for the New York Jets and Joe Namath in a silent dressing room after Sunday's upset in the Super Bowl game but added, "We just didn't make the plays we made all year to win."

"We had more opportunities in the first half and just couldn't get the blocked thing going," Shula said. "I don't think we did anything right."

Shula felt the key to the game was that Namath picked out Baltimore's weaknesses early in the game and took advantage of every opening.

"He's everything we heard about him," Shula said. "He beat us on the blitz more than we beat him."

"He had the Jets' running game going and found out early in the game he could do that and just stuck to it."

The Colts, who received $7500 each as the losers' share but showed the pain of being the first NFL team to lose to the younger AFL in the world championship game, filed silently into the dressing room beneath the Orange Bowl after their defeat.

And they dressed silently as Shula, attired in a blue jacket, explained his version of what happened.

Earl Morrall, the Colts' quarterback and Most Valuable Player of the year in the National League, appeared stunned by the defeat in which he was overshadowed by Namath.

"They made the plays—we didn't," Morrall said as he sat dejectedly on a stool. "It was one of those things. We didn't come up with the big plays."

Morrall said the Jets' defense "played good football all the way." He blamed no one but himself for the Jet interceptions that balked several Colt scoring drives. He said that the first period pass he threw that struck Tom Mitchell on the shoulder in the end zone and was intercepted by Randy Beverly was, perhaps, "tipped by one of their linebackers because it seemed to hit Mitchell high on the shoulder."

"And," he added, "I think I threw it too hard."

Shula explained that he switched from Morrall to veteran quarterback Johnny Unitas late in the third period "because we just had to get something going."

"I figured I would give Earl a shot at the start of the second half," Shula said. "We got five yards on the first running play and fumbled, but it wasn't his fault. I let him try the next series."

Unitas, who tore a page out of the past with his dramatic fourth quarter efforts to salvage the game, was asked whether he thought Shula should have put him into the game earlier.

"That's not my decision although I was ready to play right from the start," he said.

Unitas explained missing a fourth down pass in a late drive by saying, "That's what happens when you don't get much practice."

Namath poor winner

Jets overcame critics

MIAMI (UPI)—While his teammates whooped it up and his coach called him "fabulous," Joe Namath—defiant as ever after steering the New York Jets to victory over Baltimore in the Super Bowl—praised himself a "poor winner."

"I'm only talking to New York writers—those were the guys who had faith in us," the Jets quarterback told the tight squeeze of newspapermen around him in the steamy, jubilant Jets dressing room.

"I'm a poor winner," Broadway Joe said and pushed away microphones pushed in his face. But Joe relented when they put him on television. He called the Jets' 16-7 upset of the National Football League champions in the third annual world championship a victory for the entire American Football League.

"We overcame our critics. Most people predicted a 42-13 loss. We overcame our critics," said the sweating Namath, a cup of soda pop in his hand and black grease paint still on his cheeks.

"We surprised the critics...but Baltimore's a fine football team, a fine team."

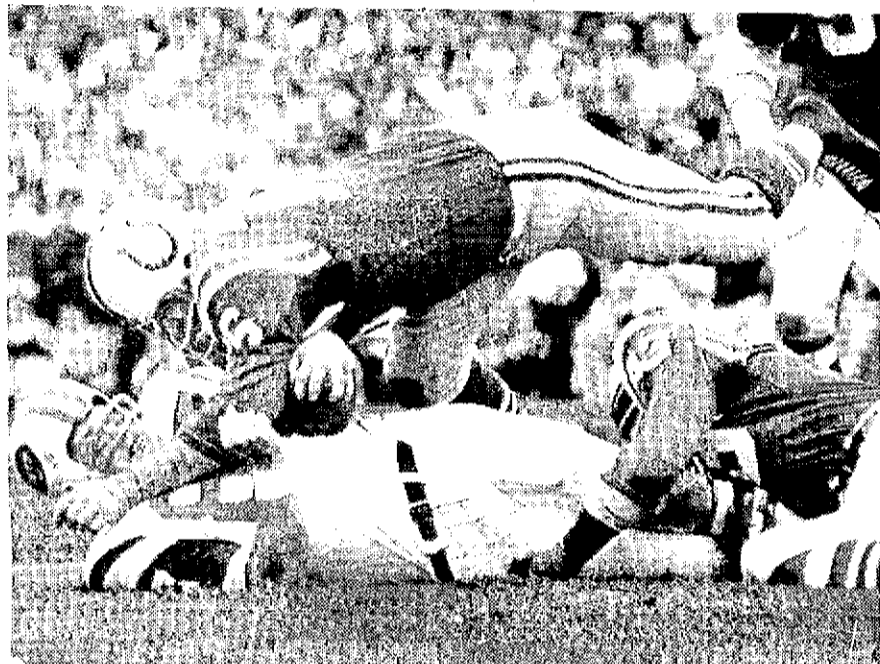

He went down the Jets' roster praising his teammates, particularly Matt Snell for his smashing line runs all day and George Sauer, who pulled in key Namath passes.

"George just beat 'em on the inside all day," Namath said. "He did a great job. A beautiful job. He just got open inside them all day long."

Greatest moment in AFL history

MIAMI (UPI)—Milt Woodard, president of the American Football League, called Sunday's 16-7 Super Bowl victory by the New York Jets over the Baltimore Colts "the greatest moment in the history of our league."

"This has to be one of the great moments in sports history," said Woodard. "Baltimore was called a super team and people said we had just a couple of good teams in the AFL. But we dominated play out there today. The AFL has finally arrived."

Sifford wins LA in playoff

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Charlie Sifford sank a six-foot birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden death playoff Sunday to beat South Africa's Harold Henning and win the $20,000 first prize in the 72-hole, $100,000 Los Angeles Open.

Sifford, 46, acquired a lead when he shot an eight under par 63 in the first round of the tournament and then followed with three successive par 71 rounds for a total of 276.

Henning was three strokes back going into the final round but shot a three-under-par 68 to tie Sifford, the first Negro to win a PGA tour event. Henning's earlier rounds were 74-68-66.

They started the sudden death playoff on the 15th hole and Sifford was right down the middle with his drive and put his second shot about six feet short of the pin.

Henning pushed his second shot to the right and missed the green. He chipped up to about three feet from the cup but Sifford then sank his putt to end it on the birdie shot.

Henning collected $11,400 for second place.

Billy Casper, who won this tournament last year, shot a final four-under-par 67 for a 72-hole total of 277, seven under.

Joe named MVP; to receive car

MIAMI (UPI)—Quarterback Joe Namath of the New York Jets will receive a new 1969 automobile from Sport Magazine for his selection as the Most Valuable Player in Sunday's 16-7 Super Bowl victory over the Baltimore Colts.

Namath will be the third quarterback to receive an automobile from the magazine. Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers won the award in 1967 and 1968.

Ted's Tidbits

By TED WISMER

We expected to wake up any minute and find out it was only a dream but New York's 16-7 win over Baltimore in the Super Bowl Sunday may very well be the biggest upset in the history of sports.

Although we hate to admit it, "Broadway Joe" Namath now must be rated with the all-time great quarterbacks of professional football.

We might even go so far as to say the win may have been the greatest thing that has happened for professional football.

There are those who felt that if the Jets and Colts played 10 times the latter would win the other nine games. But Sunday was the Jets' day and you can't take it away from a club that probably saved the Super Bowl from becoming defunct.

Ken Sisson has sent out 11 or 12 invitations for next year's Pocono Classic.

Sisson is hopeful of making the tournament tougher by landing some prestige schools in the university division.

With more tournaments being started each year its getting harder for Sisson to bring new teams into the tournament.

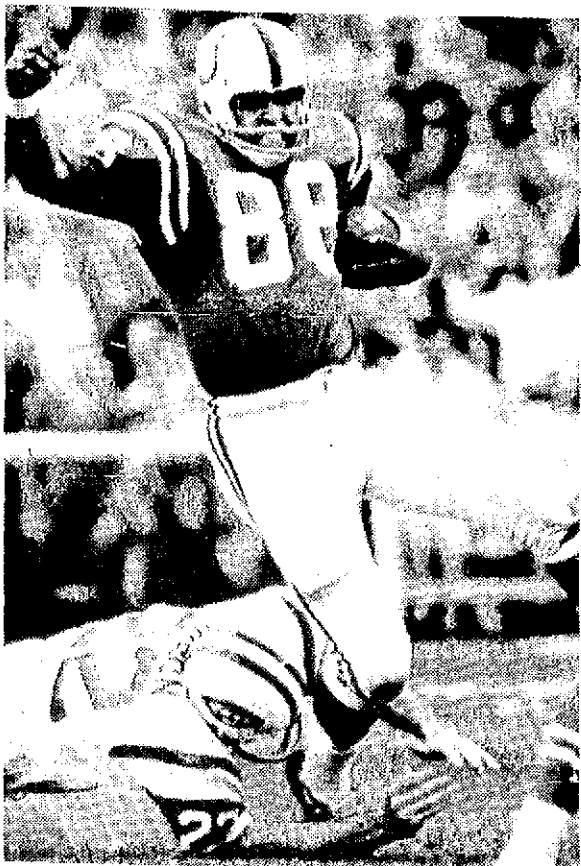

At least three of this past season's field are committed to other tournaments this year. Lafayette, which defeated Muhlenberg in the finals, has a commitment in Florida; Middlebury is set for the Scranton tournament, while 'Kings, the third place finisher three straight years, is scheduled to begin its own Christmas tournament.

Area snowmobile drivers may find it harder to take the top places in area sanctioned races this year.

Ray Hartman explained that this area is the southern border line of snowmobile racing and each of the different manufacturers of machines are sending out teams so their product can be seen.

The races at Honesdale over the weekend drew many drivers from Canada, New York, and Minnesota and even one driver from Finland.

The field at the Buck Hill Championships this weekend is expected to attract more of a local field since it's not a sanctioned meet. Some of the area teams are expected to split their teams for the Buck Hill races and a sanctioned race at Susquehanna.

HONESDALE — Area drivers didn't fare too well in the Wayne County Championship Snowmobile Races held over the weekend at the County Fairgrounds.

The races were sanctioned by the United States Snowmobile Association and drivers received points towards state and national championships.

Area drivers placing were John Eilenberger, East Stroudsburg, third in Class I modified; Clyde Hallett, East Stroudsburg, fourth in Class I modified; Gary Weber, Honesdale, third, Class D stock; Carl Fritz, Honesdale, fourth Class II modified; Ralph Lillis, Bushkill, fifth Class II modified and Roger Hartman, East Stroudsburg, fourth in Class IV, modified.

Although local drivers failed to take first in any of the events they can be proud of their performances considering the experience of many of the factory teams.

Most top teams have smoother path

UCLA, North Carolina rally in second half

By MARTIN LADER
UPI Sports Writer

Both UCLA and North Carolina were subjected to an unusual experience Saturday. They had to work themselves up for the second half of their games.

The nation's top two college basketball powerhouses are accustomed to putting away their rivals in the first 20 minutes and leaving a good part of the second half to the scrubs. The script was a little different on Saturday.

Top-ranked UCLA held a slim 35-32 lead at halftime against Oregon State and didn't break away until the final eight minutes to gain an 83-64 triumph and its 11th victory without a loss. North Carolina, No. 2, actually trailed at intermission, 42-41, before rolling to a 99-77 decision over Virginia Tech.

Most of the other top-rated teams had a smoother path Saturday and all those to see action, with the exception of sixth-ranked Kansas, were successful. Kansas fell before Missouri 47-46.

Third-ranked Santa Clara stretched its perfect record to 14 games by beating Pacific 67-56; fourth-ranked Davidson routed West Virginia 102-71; fifth-ranked Illinois bested Northwestern 82-77 in overtime; seventh-ranked Kentucky defeated Florida 88-67; Villanova, No. 9, beat St. Joseph's 87-62 and 10th-ranked New Mexico State blasted Santa Fe 117-67. St. John's, rated eighth, was idle.

Low Alcindor, who finished with a game-high 29 points, scored 13 of them within a space of four minutes late in the contest to pull UCLA away from pesky Oregon State in a Pacific Eight Conference game. Beaver center Vic Bartolome, who did a relatively good job of containing the all-America center, scored 23 points.

Bill Bunting assumed the hero's role for North Carolina as he scored seven consecutive points at the start of the second half to put the Tar Heels in front for good. Bunting finished with 30 points as North Carolina boosted its season's record to 11-1.

Santa Clara shot off to a 9-0 lead and wasn't bothered thereafter in disposing of Pacific in a West Coast Athletic Conference clash. Bud Ogden scored 16 points and Dennis Awtrey added 14 for the winners.

Mike Maloy scored 24 points and grabbed 19 rebounds and Jerry Kroll added 22 points in leading the Davidson route of West Virginia. The Wildcats built up a 50-36 halftime lead in rolling to their 10th victory in 11 games.

Mike Price scored five points and Jody Harrison four in the overtime as Illinois snapped a one-game Northwestern winning streak and ran its own mark to 11-1. Harrison led all scorers with 20 points. The Wildcats are rated 19th.

A 25-foot jump shot with eight seconds remaining by Theo Franks provided Missouri with its exciting Big Eight upset of Kansas, and the Jayhawks' 12-game winning streak. Missouri held the ball for almost four minutes to set up the last shot and the Tigers, who had trailed 40-41, held Kansas scoreless for the final six minutes and 45 seconds.

Kentucky registered its third consecutive Southeastern Conference victory by beating Florida behind Dan Issel's 20 points; sophomore Howard Porter scored 36 points and pulled down 26 rebounds in leading Villanova over arch-rival St. Joseph's; and New Mexico State surpassed its previous school scoring record of 111 points in bombing Santa Fe.

New Mexico, the No. 11 team, beat Denver 94-81; 12th-ranked Notre Dame tripped DePaul 66-60 as Bob Whitmore scored 22 points; 15th-ranked Columbia squeezed by Brown 54-52 after trailing until the final two minutes; 18th-ranked Louisville fell before Cincinnati 87-75; 18th-ranked Tulsa handed 17th-ranked Drake an 86-78 beating; and Detroit, tied for the 19th berth, lost to Dayton 4-62 despite 30 points by Spencer Haywood.

Sixty-one year old John Kelley didn't win this race, but received the biggest hand of the night, as he finished last in a special "Master's Mile" for runners 40 and above, 43rd Knights of Columbus Indoor Track Meet, Boston Garden Saturday. Veteran marathoner Ted Vogel of Boston won the race in 4:49.4. Kelley of Water-town, Mass., ran the mile under 5:30.

Blues' Hall zips North Stars, 2-0

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (UPI)—Superb goal-tending by St. Louis' Glenn Hall and goals by Larry Keenan and Tim Ecclestone carried Western Division leader St. Louis to a 2-0 National Hockey League victory over the slumping Minnesota North Stars Sunday.

A crowd of 10,091 plus a national TV audience saw the veteran Hall turn aside all 31 Minnesota shots for his fifth shutout and St. Louis' 10th of the season.

Keenan fired St. Louis' first goal when he took a neat passout from Red Berenson and backhanded the puck past North Star goalie Cesare Maniago at 2:46 of the second period. It was Keenan's second goal of the season.

Ecclestone added the second goal with 5:30 left in the game when he took a lead pass at center ice from Berenson, skated in unimpeded on Maniago and drilled the puck high into a corner for his fifth goal of the season.

The victory was the Blues' 20th and it gave them 50 points, well ahead of second place Oakland.

The loss extended Minnesota's winless strug to 11 games, longest by two in the club's history. The score might have been higher but for outstanding work by Maniago, who stopped 21 of 23 St. Louis attempts.

Minnesota threatened to break through the Blues' tight-checking defense several times in the first period and again late in the third but Hall was equal to the occasion.

Minnesota's Wayne Hillman missed a clear shot on Hall in the second period and Danny O'Shea and Wayne Connely hit the post in the third period.

Amateur hockey player killed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—An amateur hockey player has died at University Hospital here as a result of injuries he suffered during a game in Jackson Saturday night.

Authorities said John Shawanbin, 39, Lansing, was dead on arrival at the hospital after he had been transferred here from a Jackson hospital with a head injury.

Jackson police said Shawanbin was playing for the Albion Black Hawks, an Open League team, in a game against Hillsdale College at Jackson Sports Arena when he fell to the ice after he was checked into the boards.

Sabich surprising second in Lauberhorn Ski Classic

WENGEN, Switzerland (UPI)—Spider Sabich of Kyburz, Calif., taking part in his first competition since suffering an infected leg, finished a surprising second to Austrian Reinhard Tritscher Sunday in the special slalom of the 39th Lauberhorn Ski Classic.

Sabich actually appeared the winner until Tritscher, a 22-year-old milkman whizzed through the 75 gates of the second run in one minute, 5.47 seconds. This gave him a total time of two minutes, 1.58 seconds for the two runs, enough for a 43 hundredth of a second victory over the American. Sabich had a total time of 2:2.01 on runs of 56.21 and 65.80 seconds.

Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., led the strong international field after the first run of 73 gates with a time of 55.36 seconds, but he fell on the second run. "It was tough luck," Kidd said. "I wanted to come down safe without taking any risks and still I fell on the soft snow and icy spots."

Austrians took all the honors in the Lauberhorn as Heini Messner captured the combined after Karl Schranz won the downhill Saturday. Schranz crashed in the first heat of the slalom and withdrew, saying, "Why should it only happen to the little ones? Also a big favorite can fall. I will get through perfectly at Kitzbuehel next weekend."

The spill cost Schranz his third Lauberhorn trophy for the combined slalom. He also won it in 1965 and 1966.

Spills and disqualifications eliminated almost half the field of 91 racers from 17 nations. Of the top 15 seeds, seven failed to finish, including Rick Chaffee of Rutland, Vt., who was 13th after the first heat.

Also disqualified were Frenchmen Bernard Orcel and Patrick Russel, who are the closest rivals to Schranz in the World Cup standings.

Sabich, who was 35th in the downhill, suffered a poisoned left foot and hadn't raced since before Christmas. Still, he was somewhat unhappy despite his excellent time of two minutes, 2.01 seconds.

"It is tough to be happy about finishing second when you came so close to winning," the 24-year-old Sabich said. "I did not ski well in the second run, when I tried to avoid risks but make it a technically good run."

Sabich was followed in the slalom standings by Peter Frei of Switzerland, Alfred Matt of Austria and defending champion Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland.

The best of the again disappointing French team was young Henri Duvailland, who took seventh behind Italian Claudio de Tassis, who finished sixth despite starting 11st.

Messner, second in the downhill and ninth in the slalom, took the first combined trophy of his long career with 13.64 points.

"I took no risks at all in the slalom," he admitted. "I was only looking for the combined trophy."

Monte-Sano combines linen and wool in a plunged-neck softly pleated dress, then wraps it up with a green and grey plaid jacket. The empire bodice is green linen, the skirt, grey wool. Photographed at the new General Motors Building. Hat by Mr. John.

At home—he hopes. Murray Nieman uses white lace threaded with silver for wide pants and bra topped by front and back panels of lace from a high neckline, all etched in glitter . . . from Hannah Troy.

Black and white is a big trend for Spring. The enormous floral print costume from Bronell has an easy dress of linen with a ring collar beneath a shaped long jacket. Black beret from Mr. John.

Designing ways to suit women of many moods

By Bobby Westbrook

NEW YORK—Generalizing about fashion trends is great sport but women don't wear trends, they wear dresses usually acquired at great pains and over varying periods of time.

The main purpose of fashion shows and fashion show coverage is to show coming trends from which the individual women will select her own style, color, and line, expecting it to stay in style for some seasons yet to come.

Name designers, whose livelihood depends on their being one jump ahead are pretty good indicators of coming fashions. Each interprets those trends in his own way.

Vincent Monte Sano for instance will have nothing to do with "see-through blouses" which doesn't mean he doesn't sneak in a see-through skirt.

This year he uses lots of pinks combined with plains in very thin wool which can go right through the year.

Branell goes in for the contour feeling, with the silhouette molding but not clinging, great for waistlines that aren't as small as they used to be.

She features the new team-up of a long tunic over wide pant legs, "elephant legs" they're called and the tunic can go it alone as a dress.

The Harold Levine collection, designed by Don Breitinger is all softness and movement. Skirts swing, sleeves are full, waists are bandaged, wrapped, sashed or belted.

His jackets go to all lengths from bolero, to regulation to the longer-line hacking jacket and his coat ensembles come in free-form, check, geometric designs and plain and patterned.

Murray Nieman, new designer head for Hannah Troy does the separate look by a daring use of fabric and design, pulling the seemingly impossible together in arrangement of contrasting scale and pattern.

For instance a black and white checked silk full-sleeved blouse with pointed collar rolling over the top of a brief bolero; the bolero and swinging full skirt are both printed with large stylized flowers in black against a white ground with narrow black stripes.

Surprising for Hannah Troy is a new nudeness in some of his lace and organza evening gowns.

About the barest of the bare was an Ole Borden design for Rembrandt in a green linen held together with chains. However, one of the most useful of his ideas was the wardrobe package of interchangeable parts.

Part one might be a melon crepe shirt dress worn unbelted or softly bloused with a tortoise link chain belt, or as a tunic over pants printed in cinnamon, shrimp, melon and bone, and finally to be worn with the dress, the pants or with both a spare pared down sleeveless jumper coat in the same print.

Chuck Howard's shirtwaist dresses don't have a schoolmarm look, not a vermilion dirndl skirt rising to just under the breasts and topped with a long sleeved blouse like whipped cream.

Harvey Berin's collection by Karen Stark give a lot of attention to collars, cuffs and belts, and end at a becoming length in soft wools and imported silks.

The sleeveless coat is high fashion news. Here a navy jersey sleeveless double buttoned coat is worn over a silky shirtwaist in shades of navy, red and gold, designed by Don Breitinger for Harold Levine's collection.

Stylized patterns are making Spring fashion news. Here white stylized leaves on black Swiss crepe make this dress from Harvey Berin, designed by Karen Stark. Slimly cut with an air of the shirt-waist silhouette, it gently molds the body.

Black and bare . . . Ole Borden does a liny dress for Rembrandt. The tiny top covers only what's necessary and leaves the back bare with a network of chains to hold things together, and multichain belt clasps an A-line skirt.

Harem pants are the only type Chuck Howard will do for women. Here they billow beneath a wrapped and bowed waistline and a daring criss-cross top, done in Boudura's "Green Mansions" print. Jewelry by K. J. L.

Classic lines in evening dress by Roxane for Samuel Winston, which bares the front in a small triangle and the entire back of this draped white jersey gown. A rhinestone jewelled collar catches the folds of the top, while a wide band of rhinestones circles the waist.

Pomegranate red cigaline forms this full-skirted, full-sleeved gown by Sarmi which is edged with jeweled fringes of gold, crystal and peridors.

Romantic full-skirted gown of white silk taffeta patterned with pink and blue flowers by Elinor Simmons for Malcolm Starr's collection. The waist is tied with an azure blue silk velvet ribbon.

Decollete is deep in this short evening dress by Oscar de La Renta. The white rayon dress is bordered with jewel beading and trapunto at neck, short sleeve, hem and at the middle of the trapunto waist band.

True Trigere—the peerless Pauline makes a top and long skirt of cut flowers in white pique. Applied work edges the neckline and hem of the bodice.

Evening Fashion fantasy

NEW YORK—The age of reason gives way to the age of fantasy in the evening clothes shown by the name designers of the American Designer Series which completed their showing at the Delmonico this week.

The dresses may be long or short, covered up or bare, and a woman may go out in the evening dramatically done up as a gypsy, an Oriental princess, a nautch dancer or a true romantic in a full long skirt and fitted top with huge lush sleeves.

"Dress" or "Don't Dress" either one is a matter of mood and individual preference.

Individual designers may hit many moods within their own collections.

Ferdinand Sarmi can offer a soft, floating and romantic evening dress or a jump suit of jewel bordered or jeweled sleeved crepe with long slashed overskirts tied at the waist.

Gaston Berthelot's marvelous creations for Dior, N.Y., drew applause for his evening clothes including a white chiffon dotted with gold circles and costing $895.

"We always try to make one for a thousand dollars," said the commentator, "since we don't want people to think we're too cheap".

Roxane for Samuel Winston clings to definitely molded bodice, a normal waistline, and often a wide cinched belt. The skirt is invariably a shimmering see-through over a figure molding slip.

Adele Simpson, that inveterate traveler, designs for the traveling woman. In fact a woman can travel with her wardrobe on her back instead of in a suitcase with a Simpson travel costume with pants, skirt, fully-cut coat of black fabric with a black and white printed tunic dress and a flowing scarf.

But there are special occasion clothes too, including pants among friends for hostess or guests including a woven iridescent paillette.

Whether you're bound for the Inaugural Ball or a college prom, there's enough variety to make the matter entirely one of individual tastes and tempo.

Short evening dress of cut out and embroidered organza. The bodice is shaped high with a plunging neckline and is embroidered with crystal beads by Pat Sandler.

Jump into the after-five scene in this vivid "College" pink and white-printed alaskine jumpsuit with matching brief jacket and rhinestone accents.

Giant Paisley, two versions of black and white paisley by Donald Brook. The all-over paisley is used in a high waisted pajamas with pleats falling from the bustline. The space paisley in the dinner gown has the same pleats.

Song about brothers

Anyone over 35 is bound to remember the haunting lyrics of a song called "John and Marsha." (To those under 35, I'll clue you. They were the only two words in the entire song.)

My neighbor, Mayva Larnys, has written a sequel to it called Rob and Ricky. The song was inspired by her two sons who were playing one day in their bedroom. Mayva simply wrote down their conversation and set it to music. Another "Harper Valley PTA" it isn't, but it might just ring a familiar chord to the mother of the boys.

"Rob!"
"Ricky!"
"Rob, don't!"
"Ricky, don't!"
"I'm telling."
"I'm telling FIRST!"

(Refrain: Mother's voice:
"What's going on in there?"
Boys, in unison (softly):
"Nothing."
"Rob, shut up."
"Ricky, you shut up."
"Rob, stop it!"
"Ricky, you stop it!"
"I'm telling."
"I'm telling FIRST!"
(Refrain: Mother's voice:
"What's going on in there?"
Boys, in unison (softly):
"Nothing."
"Rob!"
"Ricky!"
"You're hurting me, Rob."
"Quit hitting me, Ricky."
"I'm bleeding, Rob.")

New York City's first building code was enacted in 1647.

"I'm glad, Ricky."
"I'm telling."
"I'm telling."
"I'm telling FIRST!"
(Refrain: Mother's voice:
"What's going on in there?"
Boys, in unison: "He's looking at me.")

Ann Landers

Test backs blonds

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a woman wrote and asked if you thought blonds had more fun. You said you didn't know of any surveys but your own personal opinion was "no."

You are wrong and I proved it.

I am a hairdresser. My natural color is dark brown. Last year, just to satisfy my curiosity, I conducted a personal experiment. I dyed my hair every color on the chart and checked the male reactions for two weeks. I started by going raven's wing black. Coal-black hair is more attention-getting than brown. I discovered by walking through hotel lobbies and sitting in the swangiest cocktail lounges. I kept track of the whistles, propositions and requests for dates. (The last two are not the same.)

From raven's wing black I went to chestnut. Then I tried the copper tones, next the true reds. From burnt auburn I eased into the blond shades. I began to get a lot more propositions as well as dinner invitations when I hit honey blond. By the time I got to platinum, I was so swamped I couldn't keep the names straight.

I became engaged to a wonderful fellow as a platinum blond. The first thing the guy asked me to do was let my hair go back to its natural color. Funny, isn't it, that men like to date platinum blonds but they want their wives natural? I'm going to be married next month as a brunette.

But facts are facts, Ann. Blondes do have more fun and I proved it.

LUCKY LUCILLE

Dear Lucille: You are lucky — lucky you have any hair left. A gal who dyes her hair a different color every two weeks could end up bald — not engaged. Congratulations and best wishes.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are busy with problems more important than mine but please give me an answer. Thousands of people in your reading audience could benefit from the information.

What does a person do when he is eating out — particularly in the home of a friend — and runs into a bad shrimp, or an oyster that doesn't taste right, or an overripe stuffed olive?
